he of Mr. Samuel Budgett, late of Kingswood Hill. By William Arthur, AM. I vol. 12mo; paper 50c. cloth 75c. This is a book for the busy. It is an admirable volume, to which men from the counting-house or the shop may turn, feeling that it concerns themselves, and is worthy of their high approbation. Although a commercial biography, it pessesses all the interest of a romance, and it incubates these sound, substantial, healthy principles of moreantile success which every pairs at would desire his son to pursue; at the same time it furnishes a memoir of one of the most active and enterprising of English merchants.

ONE MILLION COPIES OF WHICH have been printed, in this country and in—Europe, in a little more than as in mouths,—a sale which has no counterpart in the world's history. Yet, notwithstanding this immense rale, there are hundreds of thousands in our own country, who have not yet perused the glowing pages of UNCLE TOM'S CABIN, many of whom have been prevented from coing so, from inability to purchase. To remove this obstacle, we have issued this edition.

And millions will now read it, and own it, and drink in its beavenly principles, and the living concrations of men will inable its nobe sentiments, and generations of men will insule in training a noble woman to utter such glowing, burning trulks, for the redemption of the oppressed millions of currace.
